I guess the way I met
 you was on a 3rd grade cheerleading
 I'm really glad I did, cause I think we've come a long way since then. Good luck on Drill Team!!
 Stay sweet & tall
 Love, Betsy (again)

Nancy,
 It's been great this year leaving a period with you. Really it's been great knowing you.
 Love Michael Retaway

Nancy,
 In spite of all our arguments and disagreements (I guess you know who I'm talking about) I like you just the same and I hope
 it's vice versa.
 Love Ya,
 Jennie

Nancy,
 To start off, don't sit near me next year in homeroom!
 (I ended) Betsy

Hi!
 Bay, you're really changed.
 You're also real sweet. You're got everything going for you, take advantage of it, love you,
 luck to you, the enjoyed you friendship.

Hi Wilt
Hi again
See I can't spell
Bye, Jim

Nancy,
I really have enjoyed this year, even though we did argue at cheerleading, but it's still was fun.
Jill

May all your wishes come true
about Tony Tiger and good luck.
Hope to get closer friend to you
next year.

Progress exemplifies '70

Change is the keyword at Grady. With a new four quarter year the old curriculum swells to include the new; an old building stretches to combine the best of the old with the new; and a changing student adapts himself to the progressive education of which his improvement is the ultimate aim.

Building and curriculum changes benefit student

All changes in the building and the curriculum have one purpose: to benefit the student. The new library has carrels equipped with tape and turn table outlets along with a cross filing system so that students can locate all available material—tapes, records, books—on a subject in one spot. Under construction is a new gym with more space and facilities for a future swimming pool, while the old gym gets a facelifting to take care of the overload.

As a result of excellent instruction, Michael Chunn coaxes round, resonant sounds from his tuba.

Grady keeps pace with modernized surroundings

Within walking distance of Grady, a veritable facelifting revitalizes old buildings and keeps them in step with Atlanta in its puberty. This surrounding modernization forces Grady not to become a sore thumb; it induces growing pains in the school, relieved by a throwing off of the obsolete and a bringing on of the new.

Above: Bulldozers can create as well as destroy. This is evident as the huge tractor-like machine shovels out holes for a row of oak trees to enhance the front of school.
Left: A house in the Grady area gets facelifting so it will be up-to-date with times.

Peachtree St U S A has had a faceliftng Picturesque flowers, modern structure, and blue dome pinpoint downtown Atlanta.

Grey Knights strive to keep up with the times

The metamorphosis of Atlanta is sweeping up Grey Knights into a whirl of activity as they try to keep up with the rapid pace of the times. These changes force students to read the newspaper so they will know what's happening, when it's happening. A change will occur in Atlanta's government as another election year rolls around; so students are kept busy campaigning for their favorite candidate.

The greatest innovation of the year, though, is that Atlanta actually has a winning team. The Braves along with the Hawks and the Falcons keep students running between the stadium and the coliseum in addition to frequent sojourns at the Alliance Theatre and Civic Center where hit shows are on the bill.

To urge Atlantans to "get out and vote" in Mayorial Run-off election, Junior Civitan, Kathy Nutt puts a flyer on car windshield.

Above: Students and other speakers listen attentively to Dr. Elizabeth Adams enlarge on many dangers of drug abuse.
Left: Junior girls faithfully labor on sign spurring the Braves on to victory.

Lewis Anderson, Paul Permison, Ronnie Goldberg guided by Mr. Thomas Speed observe newspaper at press.

Knights reach out for involvement as citizens

Within the shadow of the changing, over-powering America, Grady students move beyond the realm of high school's little world to identify with the current problems of the nation. It is these students that study drug abuse and react intelligently to the Viet Nam Conflict, but more important it is these students that involve themselves and attempt to do something about these problems.

STUDENT LIFE

The lively rhythm of a dance, the spirited excitement in the crisp air at a football game, the restless feeling that arrives with the blue skies of spring: these are things that never change. For student life will always be an integral cog of the high school machinery.

Orientation '69 signals introduction of fresh spirit

Cynthia McGraw and Felice Begner lead the eighth grade tour.

Inauguration of a new school year began with the 1969 version of Orientation Day. Arriving ready to accept Grady tradition, the Class of '74 brought fresh spirit and new ideas for change. With the annual contingent of faculty and cheerleaders helpfully explaining the many facets of Grady life, the eighth graders prepared to become a distinct part of it.

An important part of this Grady life was the new spirit displayed at assemblies. Elimination of the old class competition system stimulated more overall school spirit and less inter-class rivalries. A large group of alumni attended the first assembly to help initiate the new Grady spirit and its very important contributors—the Class of '74.

Terry Bernath, Jimmy Scheer, and Chuck Vrono listen with rapt attention to the playing of the school's Alma Mater.

Alumni Melanie Thompson and Ellen Travis observe the new spirit of eighth graders at the first assembly.

Old and new traditions illuminate fall activities

Having become adjusted to another school year, students added a new dimension to the old routine. Perhaps the most noticeable change was in the attire of the female students. In challenging the unwritten rule that they must wear dresses to school, Grady's girls won for themselves the right to wear slacks.

Continuing tradition withstood the atmosphere of change: excited juniors converged on the cafeteria to order their 1971 class rings; football games remained as popular as ever. Introducing a new tradition, the seniors supported team spirit with the Banner Contest. Tying old and new together, Mr. Derthick brought continuity to all Grady life.

Joe Cameron looks on as he is measured for his senior ring.

Fashion models at Grady? No, but slacks are "in" for Andrea Kinney and Vivienne Drakes.

The pink Cadillac groans under the mighty swing of Donald Young at the senior class Car Bash.

Contest and projects crowd Homecoming schedule

Two weeks of work and planning culminated in an unforgettable Homecoming. The first hint of activity was the building of class floats. Next, class projects came into the forefront, as Knights sporting spirit dolls voted for Mr. Touchdown, Mr. Muscles, and Ugly Legs. The day before the game created a high degree of excitement with the assembly, annual powder puff game, and reinstated Car Bash.

A clear, crisp autumn night created a perfect setting for the Homecoming festivities. Spirit remained high throughout the game, despite the loss to Bass. Halftime, however, compensated for the disappointing loss, as the classes displayed their floats, and Susan Cohen became Homecoming Queen.

In an after-speech question and answer session, Mr. Fred Rheney buttonholes Vice-mayor Jackson about Atlanta's government.

Vice-mayor Jackson talks at Thanksgiving assembly

Atlanta's vice-mayor Maynard Jackson brought the spirit of Thanksgiving to the annual assembly. Reminding the students not of what they have, but of what others have not, he inspired Gradyites to strive for changes in a world that needs many.

Among the changes that came to Grady with this holiday was the official opening of the beautiful new library. Expanded and added facilities afforded students a new opportunity for academic endeavor.

Listening closely, Mrs. Ann Woodward of the Board of Education merges with Thanksgiving assembly crowd.

Santa Claus Steve Cohen rears into the gym, ready to greet his expectant followers with gifts and cuts.

Santa, gifts, and music herald Chanukah, Christmas

The advent of Christmas and Chanukah filled the halls of Grady with joy and beauty. Various organizations brought trees and menorahs to decorate the school. Culminating weeks of secretive planning, the annual Yuletide assembly arrived, bringing Santa Claus Steve Cohen and his barbed gifts. Highlighting the season, the Winter Prom provided the setting for the announcement of 1970 Senior Superlatives.

Above: Bill James and soon-to-be transferred teacher, Miss Cohen, enjoy Christmas assembly. Right: Mr. Seitz leads orchestra through a lively rendition of "Sleigh Ride."

Wondering what their futures will hold, Mr. Overton and Mr. Matthews discuss transfers.

Lottery drafts Grady's teachers for transfers

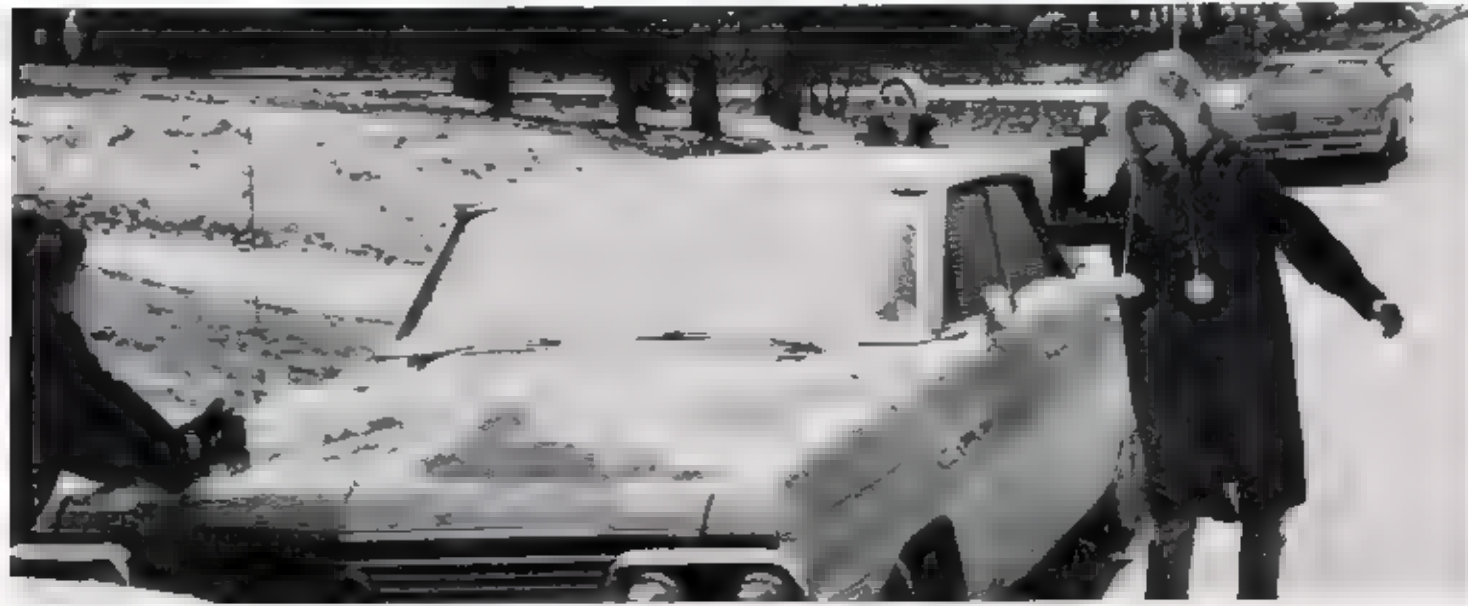

Rapidly moving events gripped Grady and swept it into a tide of political controversy. Unexpected December Federal Court rulings ordered the swift desegregation of all Atlanta City Schools faculties by March 5, 1970. To meet the required 57% black-43% white ratio, Grady prepared itself for the switching of thirty-five teachers. Upon learning that resigning teachers would be allowed to remain in their present situations for the remainder of the school year, seventeen Grady teachers resigned. Hopeful of preferred assignments, two teachers volunteered for transfer: Mr. William Haithcock and Miss Lucy Rose. Nine other faculty members received immediate orders of transfer, with the rest of the re-assignments to be completed in the fall. These nine other teachers transferred on March 5 were: Mr. Harold Miller, Mr. Phillip Alexander, Mrs. Martha Bragg, Miss Barbara Cohen, Miss Patricia Flanagan, Mrs. Linda Bressette, Mr. William Overton, Mr. Dooley Matthews, and Miss Lois Durling. To honor these eleven teachers, the Orator dedicates to them this book.

Anxious, worried, and expectant, Mrs. Triano, Miss Durling, and Miss Camarata watch the special TV broadcast which explains how re-assignments will be arranged. Seemingly unconcerned, Mr. Miller watches the program with amused interest.

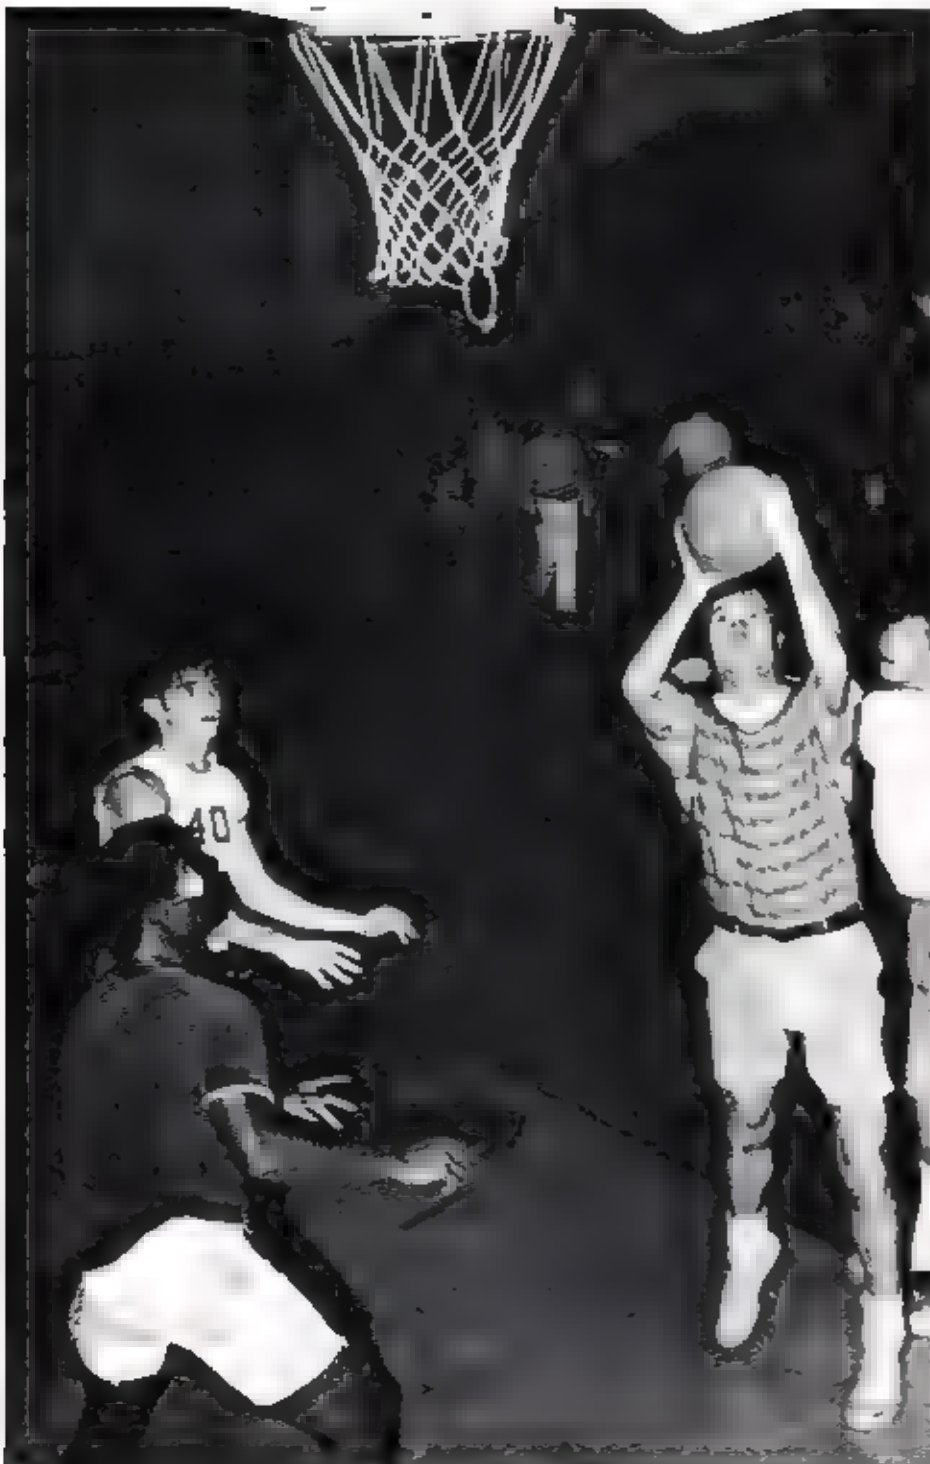

Paul Hampton finds himself on the cold end of snowball fight with Mary Long and Sue Wright.

Surprise cold and snow usher in teacher move

Unbearably cold weather accompanied the largest shake-up in Grady's history. As students bundled up for a week of below freezing weather, teachers prepared for a possible transfer on March 5. This unexpected event created new interest in Grady. Taking a new pride in their school, underclassmen organized to improve it. Participation in school events typified the faculty along with the student body. Basketball and soccer remained the most popular winter sports. Teachers proved their prowess on the hardwood floor in the annual Student-Faculty basketball game. Student support for the reinstated Silver Slipper typified the spirit that carried Grady through a rough winter quarter.

Right: Excitement and tension grip the crowd as Grady scores in the E. Atlanta game. Above: Students wait and watch helplessly as teacher Mr. McGraw proves to be a sharpshooter.

In a speech to eighth and ninth grade black students, Stan West and Yoki King emphasize pride in Grady.

Caught off-guard by an astute photographer, Prince Charming Richard Boone, Cinderella Marguerite Mitchell, and the 1970 Silver Slipper court members adjust themselves to their new crowns.

Mrs. Martha Clark discusses new ideas and innovations in modern theatre with seniors interested in creating an original senior play. Below: The lake ripples exemplify the serene atmosphere surrounding Paul Hampton, Anne Arledge, and Kathy Nutt.

Nature's subtle beauty creates spring's allure

New teachers arrived with the third quarter, bringing the fresh air of spring. The changes of the season brought a new Miss Grady, Linda Brown, and Miss Grady Junior, Marian Bacheller. Early April arrived, bring a most unusual theater experience. Building their own play, inventive seniors created characters and then related them all to each other through shared situations. With good weather and Piedmont Park nearby, few students could resist the urge to absorb the beauty of spring.

Miss Grady '69, Betty Solnik, sings "Second Hand Rose" before relinquishing her crown.

Joy and excitement are evident as Marian Bacheller becomes the new Miss Jr. Grady. Meanwhile, her predecessor Jill Sims literally jumps for joy.

Memories and hopes crowd last days of school year

Nostalgia, hope, sadness, and anticipation painted the moods of Grady students as they approached the end of the school year. Past and present merged as memories of orientation, football games, shared Christmases, grades both good and bad, and successful junior-seniors entered the minds of seniors. For them, the new reality lay in things unknown: in colleges, in jobs, in new people and new places. These things were only distant hopes for underclassmen; their time for memory-making lay ahead. All Gradyites found the end of the school year a time to put away the past and look ahead to the future.

CLASSROOM

Actions taken by Federal courts are making the classroom a racially balanced atmosphere. This is a necessary and inevitable change, nevertheless, it is causing an upheaval in the school system as teachers and students find themselves placed in unnatural circumstances.

Tense with excitement, Mr. Derthick watches a Grady football game.

Mr. Derthick frolics at a pep assembly.

Mr. Derthick charges school to higher spirit

With the same enthusiasm that he raised spirit, Mr. Derthick charged the student body toward a higher academic achievement. Doing much of the curriculum scheduling himself in order to fill individual needs, Mr. Derthick achieved personal contact with each student and teacher.

Aside from working with the school, Mr. Derthick acts in accord with various committees. He is on the Steering Committee of the Four-Quarter System, the Salary Committee of the Atlanta Education Association, the National Committee for Computers, and the P.T.A. He has been actively involved in school life for thirty four years serving as principal of Grady for fourteen years. Well informed on all aspects of education, Mr. Derthick is singly the most important figure in Grady life.

Mr. Miller aptly fulfills an additional obligation

While continuing his regular job of administering the school, supervising the office, and disciplining students, Mr. Miller assumed the extra chore of implementing the fourth quarter of the twelve-month program. Acting as principal for the summer quarter, he scheduled a dual curriculum: one for students doing a regular tract and one for students pursuing elective courses. His efficiency in coping with these varied responsibilities reflected his ability as a school executive.

With a Satanic leer Mr. Miller lights an effigy of a Bass High Warrior at Homecoming Bonfire.

Mr. Miller's door is always opened to students' confidences

While Cal Burke and Mike Owen silently wait, Mr. Charles Maupin checks their out-of-school note for legitimacy.

Mrs. Jinks finds the root of Harriet Feldman's sore throat.

Maupin, Jinks promote healthier student body

School attendance soared with Mrs. Aldean Jinks and Mr. Charles Maupin tracking down the many causes for students' absences.

Mrs. Jinks, the school nurse, watched for infections in the school and took steps to prevent their spreading. Alerting students to good health habits, she taught them how to help themselves stay healthy.

Concerned with problems other than health, Mr. Maupin visited Gradyites' homes seeking ways to cut absences. In school, he patrolled the halls and grounds directing students into their classes.

Mrs. Asbury and Mrs. Elrod laugh over one of the many amusing events in a normal day's routine.

Mrs. Marcell Scarboro reaches for important papers to complete schedules.

Extra work load bears down on business staff

Running the school business office demanded a knowledge of curriculum, teachers, and students. Everything began in the front office where Mrs. Grace Elrod and Mrs. Jane Asbury assumed responsibility for proper channeling. Here, along with their regular day's work of school attendance records and school correspondence, they met with dignitaries, troubled parents, and problem students.

New enrollments moved to Mrs. Marcell Scarboro's office, where a complete file of the quarter's schedule, including the number of the course, the period offered, and the number of students in each class, enabled her to efficiently place students in proper situations. With the help of Mrs. Nell Roberts, Mrs. Scarboro kept a complete up-to-date record on each student enrolled at Grady.

Eighth and ninth graders are of first concern to Miss Lynch.

Mrs. Martha Bragg checks her mail for any correspondence involving scholarship information.

Counselors help school in many-sided objective

Counselors served the student. Mr. Charles Morris, Mrs. Martha Bragg, and Miss Martha Lynch helped the student make his own decisions and work out his problems. Academically, the counselors tested, scored, and filed a complete record on each Gradyite. Mr. Morris and Mrs. Bragg gave valuable aid to seniors' college selections, arranging College Night with visitors from various campuses on hand to talk with interested applicants. Miss Lynch made eighth and ninth graders her personal concern. Located in their part of the building, she was always available for conferences.

Mr. Morris shows Melanie Moser a major point of the A.C.T. program.

Atmosphere plus meals vitalize Grady's energy

Mrs. Strickland prepares filling meals for Grady's faculty.

There are many factors enabling a student to work efficiently. Atmosphere helps change a dull pupil into an alert one. Often, the only trouble with a sluggish student is the need for a good lunch. This was Mrs. Virginia Strickland's responsibility. All day tempting smells poured from the kitchen. With food served at all hours, Mrs. Strickland's staff baked each day in preparation for the next.

Keeping up appearances came under Mr. Porter's supervision. With 1400 students in the building from 7:30 a. m. until sometimes ten in the evening, housekeeping was continuous.

Both Mrs. Strickland and Mr. Porter knew that a major part of Grady's reputation rested on them; thus, good food and a pleasant environment were foremost in their daily plans.

Varied special courses enliven business department

A variety of special classes made Grady's curriculum unusual: aviation tempted those who were air-minded, a regular business college course was available for those who wanted to go directly into the business world from high school, and Distributive Education offered the working students expert supervision and training in their jobs.

The teachers responsible for this training were: Mrs. Kingdon, who has an A.B. degree from Rollins College, directed the aviation courses; Mrs. Eve Lowe, Mr. Fred Rheney, Mrs. Dale Rivenbark trained the students in typing, shorthand, and transcription. Miss Camarata worked with students actively engaged in jobs while completing high school. Miss Anne Pendley and Mrs. Diane Wycherley supervised classes in reading and math skills.

Able chairman leads science department to a success

Mrs. Sanders observes the result of a successful experiment.

Mrs. Ruth Sanders, with an M.A. from the University of Alabama, created an educational atmosphere. Since 1957, she has been an active member of the science department, serving as chairman for the last seven years. During this time she has constantly participated in various study programs which made the department eligible to receive valuable equipment. Her staff included: Mrs. Joyce Chamblee, Mrs. Brenda Fetner, Mrs. Mary Neville, Mr. William Overton, Miss Suzanne Owensby, and Miss Judy Taylor.

English teachers bring enrichment to their classes

With twenty-three years experience, Mrs. Leonora Baugham, with an M.Ed from the University of Georgia, completed her third year as department chairman. Working with her were many familiar faces, Mrs. Ulysses Locklear, Miss Lucy Rose, Mrs. Fanny King, Miss Harilee Cheshire, Miss Paula Young, and Miss Diana Wilburn. Mr. Ken McGraw conducted a class for foreign students, "English as a second language." New teachers who enriched the curriculum with fresh approaches were: Mrs. Nancy Goudelock, Miss Ellen Ramsey, Mr. Michael Moate, and Miss Barbara Cohen, a former Grady valedictorian, and a Phi Beta Kappa.

Language faculty keeps up highest qualifications

In spite of the state's lowering foreign language requirements for graduation, the language faculty remained tops in qualifications. Miss Betty Smith who has a M.A. from the University of Georgia and one year on a Fulbright in France made her fourth European trip last summer. Assisting her was Miss Rebecca Vollmer who spent her junior year abroad and teaches both French and Spanish. New in the Spanish department was Mr. Malcolm MacGregor. Mrs. Lotte Borges continued to have large classes in German. Since Germany was her birthplace, she sparked her classes with authenticity.

Mr. Hilderbrand brings status to his school

Social studies attained a new status as Mr. Hilderbrand, its head, reached his twenty-first year of service in the Atlanta School System. Other teachers were Mr. Bill Chadwick with an M. A. T. from Emory University, Mr. James Draa with a B S. from Florida State, Mr. Bill Haithcock, and Miss Mariana O'Kelley. Other members of his staff who had unusual records were Mr. Dooley Matthews with twenty years and Miss Leola Spears with eleven years.

Librarians enhance the Library with art work

Work on the library was a summer project for the staff as they carefully blended colors of carpeting, curtains, and decor. Miss Respass, head librarian, Mrs. Del Jupiter, assistant librarian, and Mrs. Marie Trotter, library assistant, remained on active duty throughout the summer vacation.

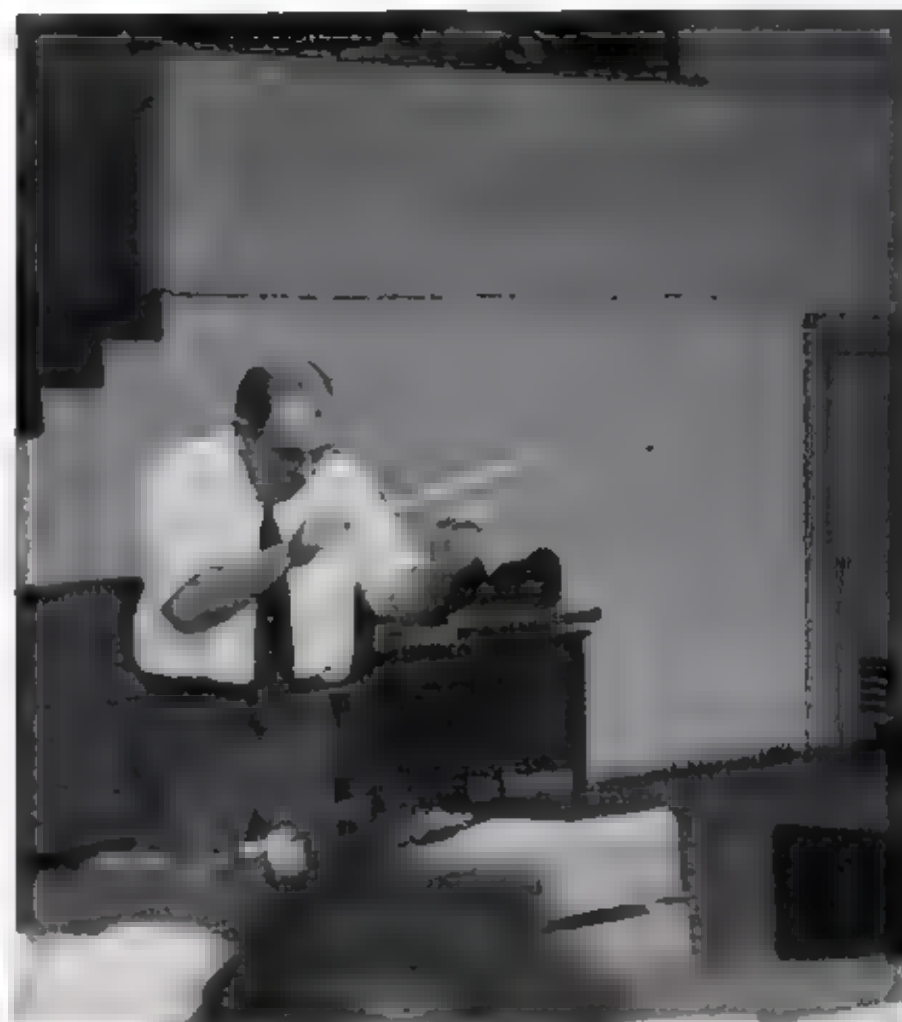

Miss Respass supervised the library's general operation, while Mrs. Jupiter assisted her by taking charge of the audio-visual equipment. By enhancing the library with her own original art work and reproductions of famous paintings, Mrs. Trotter made the library a pleasant place to study.

Seitz and Mueller enliven humanities for Gradyites

Art and music teachers created an arts program that every student could enjoy. Mrs. Thomasine M. Mueller headed the art department with Mrs. Charlotte B. Kelley as her assistant. The music department's chairman was Mr. Robert O. Seitz, with a M.M.E. from the Vanderbilt School of Music. His capable staff consisted of Mr. Andrew C. Respass and Mrs. Marion D. Triano.

Equally well-qualified were the other members of his department. Mr. Samuel Falcon holds a full-time position on the JOURNAL-CONSTITUTION. He prepares students for jobs in printing and publishing.

New to Grady but a skilled craftsman, was Mr. David Saucier. With a beautiful workshop, he trained students in the art of wood working.

Home Economics was fun for both students and faculty with Mrs. Linda Bressette and Mrs. Peggy Drayton in action. Teachers received tasty samples of food made in the Home Ec kitchen and viewed the latest fashions created in their work rooms. Food and fashion were two fields these teachers understood.

Chairman of the home economics department, Mrs. Linda Bressette muses over the good results her supervision has produced.

Military department gains respect of students, staff

Three men, who have spent their lives in the armed services, ran the military department: Maj. Heretia, Sgt. Doyle, and Sgt. Maj. Meek. Sgt. Maj. Meek, with college training at the University of Maryland, has twenty-two years of service. His combat duties include Korea and seven years in Europe. A native of Atlanta, Sgt. Meek has had twenty-five years in the service with R.O.T.C. training in college. Sgt. Doyle served in the army for nineteen years and saw action in the Pacific during World War II and in Korea. These fine men channeled Grady's R.O.T.C. program into its excellent program of military discipline.

Physical education has two expert supervisors

Under the expert management of Mr. Phillip Alexander, with a M.A. from Peabody Teacher's College, and Mrs. Geneva Weaver, with a M.A. from Columbia University, the physical education program rounded into a well designed training course. Mr. Curtis Kell, with a M.A. from Peabody Teacher's College, and Mrs. Patricia Baker, with a B.S. from Boston University, completed the department.

Angie Greene learns correct shooting method from Mrs. Weaver.

Mike Clankscales detects a stock market trend in a financial paper as other students browse around.

Library becomes focal point for teachers and pupils

Study carrels provide excellent facilities for the conscientious students of Mr. Moate.

Nothing remained of Grady's old library except the books. Even the location shifted as it spilled over into two classrooms. One classroom was incorporated into the stacks and carrels, while the other became a room for Miss Respass to meet with entire classes on special assignments.

Enhancing the new look was a green and coral color scheme with green carpeting. Air-conditioning pleased everyone. Plans to add technical devices, such as film projectors, record players, microfilm-printer readers, and television sets would make the library complete. With such a setting no wonder it became the focal point for all activities.

Mr. McGraw challenges Spanish speaking Eva Aclan, Terry Gay, and Josefina Juliao to the thrill of learning English.

English students view drama in Atlanta's theaters

English classes found drama more exciting when viewed live. This was easy with Atlanta's booming theater groups opting for student audiences. Everything from Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing, Brecht's Three Penny Opera, and Joseph Heller's late Broadway hit We Bombed New Haven offered interesting topics for themes.

Other phases of literature received emphasis in the classroom. Junior and seniors studied forms of poetry. All classes read the classical works. For the lower grades the stress was on grammar, vocabulary, and composition.

Mr. Ajeda Penn makes an astounding point on the significance of black history as Walter Ayock and Matt Dugas watch intently.

Language pupils benefit from classroom authenticity

With dubious expression, Chuck Crangle watches cherries jubilee preparation.

Authenticity was the main theme in language classes for both students and faculty. French students cooked their own five-course dinner and Spanish students went to a restaurant to increase their culinary vocabulary.

French, Spanish, and German classes adhered to strict discipline with pronunciation stressed in first-year classes and grammar in second year. Reading great works in their original was a must for advanced students of all foreign languages.

Science department makes special study of eclipses

Proving that science classes are of today's world, the department started in September preparing a camping trip to the best location for observing the total solar eclipse. They selected Waycross, Georgia, with every interested student, parent, and teacher eligible to make the trip. Both teachers and students began complete studies of this spectacular event, which will not occur again in this area for the next three hundred years.

With a laboratory thoroughly equipped to study many things, the department catered to other students' interests. They created Descriptive Chemistry: a course with more lab and less theory and mathematics. In physics, they offered a higher level of studies using the multi-media equipment: text books, lab books, overhead transparencies. One innovation of importance came in the form of team teaching which created a stimulating environment with two teachers challenging the students.

Mathematics steps up program of instruction

Involvement with mathematics courses offered at Grady ranked high among the students. Instead of taking the usual eighth grade course of basic math, subfreshmen were subjected to a test program in which they studied first-year algebra. In this way, Grady's mathematics department stepped up its instruction program allowing current subfreshmen to take calculus in their senior year.

With so much emphasis placed on S.A.T. scores, many individuals felt pressure placed on them to learn more varied types of problems. Proof that this paid off were the scores of Mary Hinkle, Marshall Fay, and Dan Barker. Mary and Marshall both scored 790, and Dan, 781 on the S.A.T.

Art and music curriculum offer students a challenge

As interest in art and music soared in the city, it overflowed into the classroom. Art classes became larger and new music groups formed.

The newest addition to the music department was the madrigal group, composed of students with well-trained voices and experience. They combined their singing with staging for their songs.

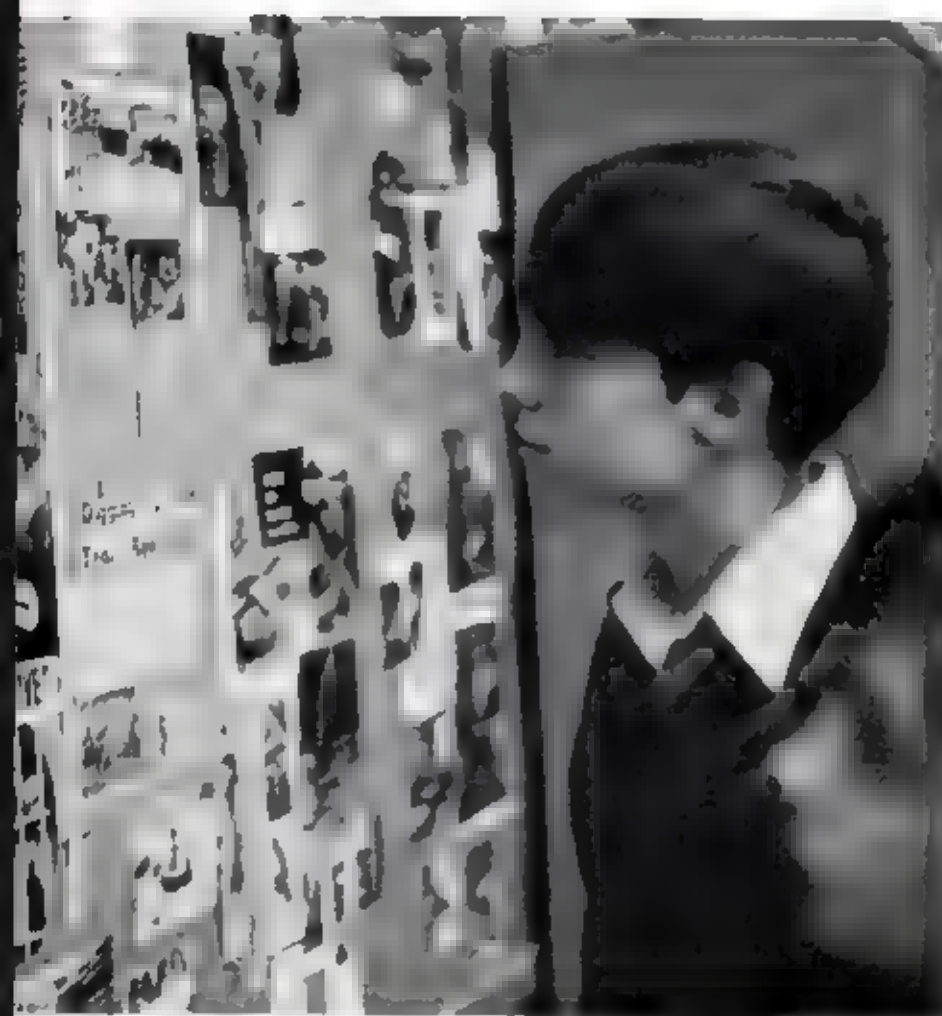

Stepping up its curriculum, the art department introduced new techniques, emphasizing tie dyeing, batik, and macrame. Using life models in the classroom, the class accepted a new challenge.

Excursions make social studies courses fun for pupils

Exciting trips spiked Miss O'Kelley's social studies courses. Her history classes, working with the Anthropology Curriculum Study Projects material, went to Ocmulgee National Monument, Macon, Georgia. Preparing for archaeological expedition, Miss O'Kelley invited amateur archaeologist Mr. Larry Meier, to talk to her classes about FU-14, the site uncovered by the Great Southeast Corporation. Her geography classes, working with Geography Project materials, went to Gainesville, Georgia, to study the poultry industry. They visited a hatchery, processing plant, and feed company.

Other classes of history, economics, and political science were just some of the social studies curriculum. Mr. Draa's classes in economics did an income tax project, creating an imaginary family and completing a tax statement on it. In a stock market study they bought stock with fake money and estimated their loss and gain as they followed the stock market reports from day to day in the newspapers. Mr. Hildebrand's classes studied pure history and benefited from his world travels. Mr. Haithcock's classes had many interesting speakers discussing the various political issues.

Home Economics offers exciting new curriculum

Home Economics enlarged its curriculum to include many courses involving today's living. A child development course, stressing both mental and physical maturity, attracted tenth and eleventh graders. A new class entitled "Preparation for Adult Roles" interested many juniors and seniors. The title defines this class: social graces, courtship, and marriage even a mock wedding for acquiring the know-how.

Industrial arts provide excellent opportunities

Three unusual classes proved the scope of Grady's curriculum: mechanical drawing, print, and wood. With one of the best-equipped shops in the city to work in, print students found all the training needed to do professional work. The woodshop became the center of all eyes as beautiful wood objects materialized from the masses of planks stacked about the shop. As always serious students interested in engineering as a career filled Mr. Clonts' classes, for everyone knew that passing his classes meant good preparation for Georgia Tech and other top technical schools around the country.

Academic achievement at Grady remains undaunted

In spite of the continued changes at Grady, nothing seemed to dampen the academic achievement of its students. National Merit, Governors Honors, Star Student, and All State music competition have among its number a lion's share of Gradyites.

Eight National Merit finalists acclaimed Grady as tops in the city system, surpassed only by Westminster Private School. These outstanding scholars who brought honor to the school as a group attained many individual honors. Three were valedictorians of the senior class. Terry Sharp and John Craig spent their senior year on the Georgia Tech campus.

Two finalists, Mary Hinkle and David Hansen, received recognition outside school. Mary became first runner-up for city star student, again topped by a Westminster student. While David, competing with vocalists throughout the state, came through the auditions to cap a place in the All-State chorus.

Two sophomores, Carl Polk and Cathy Mefford, won coveted semi finalist places on the Governors Honors summer music program. Other divisions have not been announced. These students may spend eight weeks on the Wesleyan College campus with other outstanding students from Georgia's schools.

The R. O. T. C. commemorates its anniversary

As Saber Day approached, the members of R.O.T.C., their families, and their sponsors became acutely aware of the importance of the day, especially in the light of the Golden Anniversary of R.O.T.C. at Grady. For the cadets, receiving their sabers marked a turning point in their military careers. This symbol of achievement distinguished these boys from the newer recruits. Thus, this honor day for the military impressed the school with the fine performance of its cadets.

Two outstanding cadets, Lt. Col. Stephen Koch and Major Stephen Kelley excelled in receiving military honors. Cadet Koch placed fifth among the Officer Candidate graduates, receiving a certificate during the Saber Day ceremonies commemorating his achievement. Appointed to the Youth Advisory Committee for Selective Service, Georgia, Cadet Kelley appeared on "The Sound of Youth", a television series discussing military obligations. These two young cadets exemplified a true spirit of civic responsibility.

ORGANIZATIONS

The need for clubs will never diminish because they form the basic network for school activity. Organizations teach the students to work together and be creative in their planning. Only the names, faces, and projects vary as needs of the community alter with progress.

National Honor Society sponsors new honor roll

Heading the list of Grady honor clubs was the Senior National Honor Society, which required an overall 3.5 (A) average for admission. The club nominated two of its members, Dorothy Peteet and Steve Robkin, for a national scholarship, and instituted a quarterly Honor Roll posted outside the office, honoring the students who achieved a 3.5 average for that quarter.

Like its senior counterpart, the Junior National Honor Society required a 3.5 average of its junior members. The JNHS was responsible for filling the holes in the school parking lot and buying new gold braids for Senior National Honor Society members to wear during graduation. Its members attended a play at the Barn Dinner Theater and sponsored an induction for the newly-tapped sophomore members.

Forensics, mathematics, academics foster clubs

Honorary clubs sprang out of different academic interests. The Senior Beta Club, for juniors and seniors, and the Junior Beta Club, for ninth and tenth graders, included those students with a "B" average or better. A math-centered organization, the Mu Alpha Theta, required an "A" average in math. Interest in the art of researching and arguing a given topic prompted the formation of the Debate Club.

Academic subjects spark three enterprising clubs

Several field trips to Fernbank Science Center, a bus tour through North Georgia, a trip to the Agnes Scott observatory, a camping trip to Waycross, Georgia to observe a solar eclipse—these were just a few of the interesting activities that highlighted the Science Club agenda. Their bi-weekly meetings included films with stimulating discussions, student symposiums, and outstanding visiting lecturers.

Two organizations which involved many of the students in Grady's language department were the French and Spanish Clubs. Because of its members' interest in French literature and cuisine, the French Club gave a fondue party, rented the movie "The Hunchback of Notre Dame", and went to the Chateau Fleur de Lis for dinner. The Spanish Club had a bowling party and sponsored a Valentine Dance for the school.

Career-based clubs help prepare for adult roles

Several Grady clubs concentrated on their members' possible future careers. The Future Teachers of America members, who often substituted for absent teachers, also gave a Halloween party for children at Aidmore Hospital, sold candy to finance scholarships, had a Christmas tea for the faculty, and gave another tea for the transferred teachers. The Future Homemakers of America gave a party for the children at Hillside Cottages, made fudge for the teachers on Valentine's Day, and sold Stanley products. As an extension of the Distributive Education class, the D. E. club sold candy to finance their annual employee-employer banquet, helped drive voters to the polls on election day, and sold make-up. The Future Business Leaders of America sold doughnuts in November.

Various organizations involve many Grady students

Concerned with an interest in the humanities, the Art and Library Clubs collaborated in decorating the library throughout the year. Art Club members also made a Valentine tree for the office, held a spring bazaar, and sponsored a Grady clean-up campaign. The Library Club took a field trip to the National Library Bindery, and gave a Christmas party for children at Georgia Baptist Hospital.

Two honorary organizations requiring qualifications other than grades were the ROTC Officers Club and the Girls G-Club. The Officers Club, which included commissioned cadet officers in ROTC, provided flowers for its members' sponsors on Sponsors Day. Composed of those girls with varsity letters, the G-Club made the effigy for the homecoming bonfire.

Four Grady organizations render service to school

Beaming with tearful happiness, Mod-Squad-sponsored Linda Brown starts her ceremonial walk on runway as Miss Grady.

Service clubs played an important part in Grady life. The Key Club decorated a Christmas tree for the cafeteria, met with the Roosevelt Key Club, and played a basketball game against the Northside club. The Coed Hi-Y collected for Alsac, sent three delegates to the YMCA Youth Assembly, and joined other Hi-Y clubs in a weekend at Camp Pioneer. The Y-Teens attended a Children of the Earth Happening and a Y-Teens conference at the YWCA, ushered for Holiday on Ice, stuffed Christmas bags for deprived children, sponsored an anti-litter day, and had a cake sale to raise money to send delegates to the G.A.F. Y-Teen conference. The Mod Squad made posters to support the track team, co-sponsored the Valentine's Dance, made stuffed animals for children at Georgia Baptist Hospital, and entered a winning contestant in the Miss Grady Pageant.

Service clubs promote healthy academic atmosphere

One club that had standards and maintained them was Junior Civitans. Actively engaged in their district meetings, they attended the convention and ran Cindy Bynum for deputy governor. In recognition of new members they presented them with corsages; for old members they selected the Civitan of the Month. Selecting the Sheltering Arms Children's Home as their project, they took them to the Shrine Circus, collected clothes for them, and entertained them at Christmas. Their counterpart was Junior Civitans Junior, who had a concession stand for B-Team football games, collected for Easter Seals and Alsat drives. As a money-raising project both clubs sold fruitcakes.

Two clubs which united as brother-sister clubs were Rufus B. Godwin and Joe K's. The Rufus B. Godwin gave a humorous skit in an assembly. Along with their traditional decorating of the Christmas tree in front of the office, the Joe K's painted the trash cans in the parking lot. The two clubs collaborated on the homecoming arch.

Drill team, pepperettes, majorettes perform well

Precision and practice were the by-words for the drill team, majorettes, and pepperettes. Daily two-hour practices after school kept the drill team prepared for their performances at assemblies and football games. The varsity majorette corps attended summer camp to learn routines for twirling at football games and pep assemblies. Outside of school they twirled for the Toys for Tots Parade and at the Regency Hyatt House. The newly-formed B-team majorettes twirled at a pep assembly and at football games. As well as cheering at assemblies and football games, the active pepperettes made "GHS" rosettes for teachers, published a spirit letter during homecoming week, sponsored a concert for the most spirited teacher, and collected for the UNICEF drive.

Exuberance and vitality distinguish cheerleaders

A week at cheerleading camp prepared the Varsity and B-Team cheerleaders for a lively year of football games, pep assemblies, and basketball games. Both groups sold booster stickers and pennant pads, made posters and banners for their respective teams' games, and collaborated on a humorous skit in the homecoming assembly. For the week prior to tryouts they coached the candidates for eighth grade cheerleading, who were to cheer at eighth grade games. In addition, the Varsity squad made decorations for the football banquet and dance, and joined the coaches in sponsoring Team Appreciation Week.

Julia Barker selected All-State Concert Mistress

Instrumental music was an integral part of Grady life. The versatile band and orchestra performed at the Christmas concert, annual music festival, and spring concert. In addition, the band played at pep assemblies, participated at football games, and marched in the Toys for Tots parade. After a year of hard work, both groups relaxed with a Saturday of swimming and sunning at Calloway Gardens.

Eight members of these two organizations became semi-finalists and finalists in All-State Band and Orchestra. These were: Steve Lane, Becky Polk, Carl Polk, Julia Barker, Linda Caraway, David Golden, Kathy Medford, and Francine Yancey. Julia Barker, Grady's Concert Mistress and first chair violinist, was an added honor: she became Concert Mistress for the All-State Orchestra.

Grady's choral groups possess excellent tone

Performing at many assemblies and concerts, the chorus and madrigal boasted a large number of excellent singers. Among the honors the chorus received were a superior rating in Fifth District Festival and the selection of David Hansen for All-State Chorus. The madrigal, composed of a select group of vocalists, often made appearances alone. While not as large or experienced as the main chorus, the eighth grade chorus still performed well at the Christmas concert.

Councils constitute the student representation

Three organizations played an important part in Grady's operation: the Inter-Club Council, Honor Council, and Student Council. The Inter-Club Council, which co-ordinated the activities of social clubs, sponsored the annual Christmas Dance. To finance the dance the I. C. C. required each social club to sell doughnuts. To maintain Grady's standards of honesty the Honor Council conducted a number of secret trials of students accused of cheating. The hard-working Student Council was responsible for all assemblies, class projects, co-president (and other) elections, homecoming activities, the Miss Grady Pageant, and several dances. It published the "Who's Where", continued support of the Korean child, Yung Ai; and served as vice-president of the G. A. S. C.

Social Clubs participate in community activities

Old hands at social club work were the Delts, Ladybugs-Villagers, Daisys, and P-Nuts. The Delts made two banners, decorated for the Silver Slipper, stuffed envelopes for the Heart Fund, and sponsored the "Walk Right" campaign. The Ladybugs-Villagers made rosettes, decorated the platform for the Homecoming Court, collected sheets for cancer pads, gave Valentine baskets to the teachers, sponsored a field day for seniors, and planted flowers around the newly-planted trees. The Daisys made posters for the Orator carnival and Student-Faculty game and collected for the Muscular Dystrophy Fund. The P-Nuts made banners, sent cards to the teachers on numerous occasions, made name tags for the girls' basketball team, and made posters for different sports.

Sophomores form three new, active social clubs

Using one of their many sophomore prerogatives, tenth grade girls formed active social clubs. One of these, the Cyrkle Social Club, won the ORATOR carnival trophy by having the greatest points for contributions. This hard working club also sent an encouraging telegram to the football team, made rosettes for the homecoming court, decorated a Christmas tree for Miss Cheshire's room, and collected money for St. Jude's Children's Hospital. Another sophomore club was the Peppertree. They advertised and sold tickets for the football dance. Selling candy to raise money for supplies, they made Easter baskets for the children at Grady Hospital. Their biggest project was donating blood to the Red Cross. The third new club formed was the Super-Bees. Supporting the football team, they wore dress-up clothes to school during homecoming week. As a service project these girls gave a Valentine party for the children in the nursery at Ford Street Baptist Church.

All-night vigil exhausts haggard ORATOR staff

With financial difficulties haunting the ORATOR, the emphasis was on money. The hard-working business staff kicked off the school year with an active sales campaign, and by a new policy they charged clubs "by the head" for their group pictures. However, the biggest money-raising project came on October thirty-first: the ORATOR Halloween carnival.

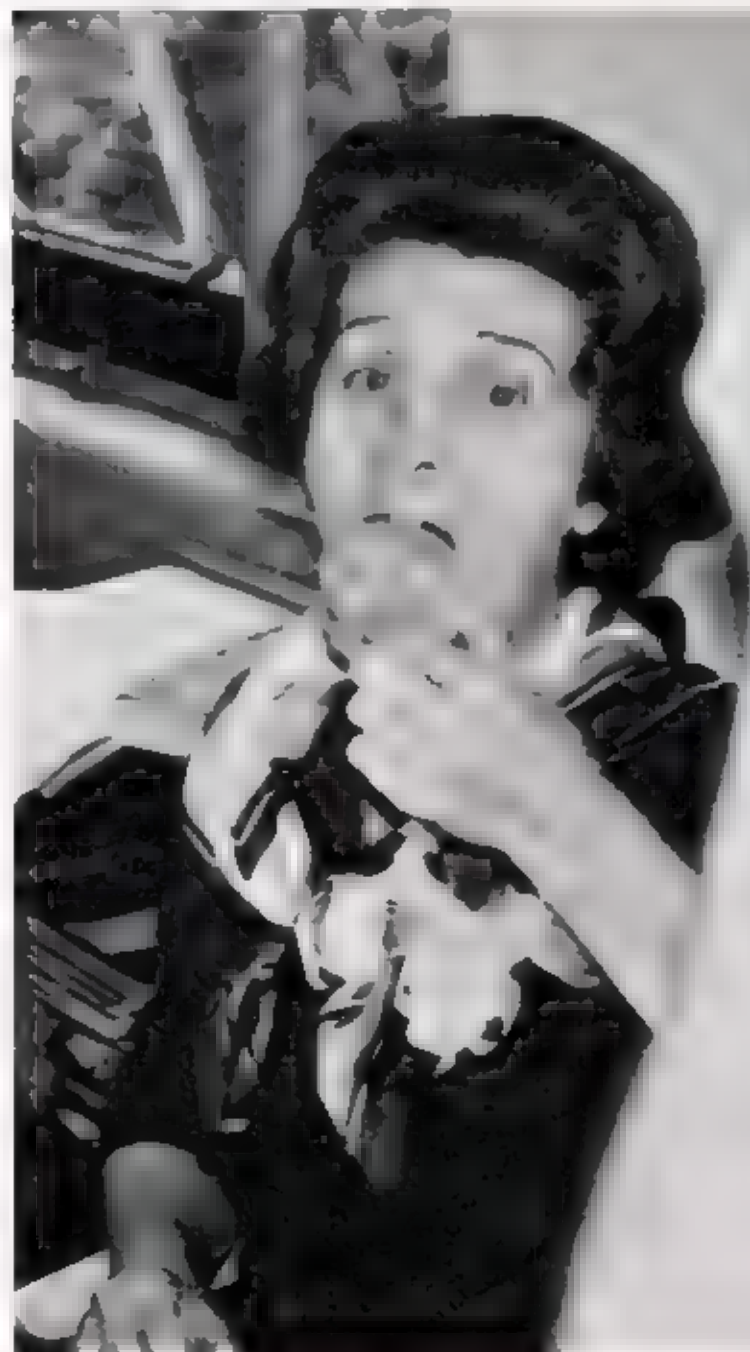

A long, hard drive to put the book together composed the remainder of the year. Weeks and months of writing, drawing, and cropping reached their peak in a three week race to meet the deadline. All-day Saturday workdays, a fact of life to the weary staff, led to a numbing Sunday night marathon, resulting in the 1970 ORATOR'S going to press on time.

SOUTHERNER displays students' contributions

Reporting the news on the Grady scene was the job of the SOUTHERNER. Due to a recent Board of Education ruling, the Atlanta School System financed its publication, eliminating the necessity for advertising. The paper came out eleven times during the year and included special April Fools' and Christmas editions. In the spring it also sponsored the traditional TWIRP week and dance.

SPORTS

Football, basketball, baseball, and soccer may have different rules and goals, but each one unites the students in their desire for the school to come out on top. Specific sports may change, but the activities, reactions, and emotions they ignite will always remain.

Students kick-off the year with the thrill of football

Football was the impetus which began the school year. This magic, invisible magnet pulled students to the stadium in rain or snow to sit on dirty stone slabs, and cheer for their team. Another season opened and another Grady year got off to an enthusiastic start with the first kick-off.

Inexperienced Varsity Team manages only one win

Grady's first few contests were hapless as Coach Bush's boys could not muster a good offense. In the opener, an overwhelming Southwest team crushed Grady 23-0. Game two saw a 7-0 Knights' lead vanish after Sylvan's Buddy Peacock stole a Steve Enloe handoff. He sprinted in for the score and Grady lost its second straight, 14-7. Against Murphy, the Knights had a 7-7 tie until the final minutes of the game. Menacing Greg Horne headed one of two scoring drives which finished off the Knight's third game without a win by a 19-7 margin.

For the next three weeks, the Knights' offense produced only one TD while yielding 53 points to its opponents. Smith ran two long plays from scrimmage for two touchdowns to beat Grady 14-8. Fulton then scored three safeties and a TD to whip Grady 13-0. East Atlanta then shut out Grady 26-0 for its worst defeat of the year.

One month before the astronauts lifted off for the moon, the Grey Knights went into orbit following their 21-17 victory over O'Keefe. Reginald Blue picked up an O'Keefe fumble and scored to put Grady in front. After falling behind, Enloe tied the game at 14-14 on a seven yard end-sweep. With three minutes left in the contest, Grady found themselves down by three points. O'Keefe was forced to punt and Enloe ran it back for the winning tally.

Warriors spoil Knights' dreams on Homecoming

Grady then finished the all too long season by losing their last three games. Carver scored two quick touchdowns and succeeded in maintaining a comfortable lead throughout the game. Homecoming week matched Grady against Bass. Grady tried valiantly to please the cheering student body and many alumni but was defeated by a slim 21-13 margin. The finale of the season resulted in a 32-7 victory for Brown.

This year's team lacked any significant experience since there were only four seniors on the entire squad. Next year should be the year of the Knight with at least twenty players returning for action.

B-Teamers lack depth; manage an 0-4-1 record

Lack of experience and a tough schedule plagued the Grady B-Team this year. Many outstanding sophomores and freshmen were promoted to the varsity ranks leaving the B-Team with an untried squad. This resulted in an 0-4-1 record, with the only tie coming against lowly Hoke Smith.

Tough schedule hinders Baby Knights' efforts

Inexperience cause for Softballers' 3-5 record

Due to lack of experience the Softball Team's record contrasted greatly with last year's. Co-captains Lynn Adams and Susan Wright were the only seniors on the team. Never in their five losses did the girls lose by more than three runs.

Lynn Adams started every game on the mound while Kathy Zwald led the way in the hitting department, and played left field. Other starters were Frances Bell in right field, Portia Farley at first base, Becca Porter at catcher, Cheri wood at third base, and Susan Wright at second base.

Gardner leads Harriers to Region 6-AA Crown

Junior Phil Gardner led the Grady Cross Country Team to its first undefeated season, compiling five straight wins over their 6-AA opponents. Usually placing a close second and third to Phil were Richard Boone and Mark Dryman, respectively.

"This is the best and largest Cross Country Team Grady has ever had," praised Coach Bill Chadwick after winning another meet. His words became facts when Grady placed sixth in a field of twenty-three in the City Wide Meet. In the annual State Meet, Grady finished its season by capturing eleventh place with Gardner the eighth fastest runner in the state.

Varsity Soccer remains incumbent to region title

Grady's soccer team won the region championship for the third straight time during its short existence. Superior defense and ball control were important factors that accounted for Grady's 8-1-1 record. Despite their regular season record, North Springs took advantage of three missed penalty kicks and ruined the Knights' tournament dreams.

Freshman Hector Villalobos was instrumental in all of Grady's victories. He scored a total of twenty goals the entire season, breaking the school record. Hector's brother Arnaldo also contributed heavily to the scoring by personally contributing five goals.

The list of defensive standouts was headed by goalie Steve Fuller. Quick and agile, Steve has been the key to several of Grady's wins. Assisting Fuller in guarding the goal were Ashley Royal and Eli Pinhas at the fullback positions. Team captain Richard Boone, along with Mark Evans, Bill Reeves, and Mike Royals made up the halfbacks.

B-Team finishes short schedule with a 2-1 record

Grady's B-Team soccer squad was potent in every position. Losing a 1-0 heartbreaker to Briarwood, the B-teamers bounced back to take a 1-0 decision over Bass. Center-forward John Bacheller scored the only goal on a penalty kick midway through the third quarter. The only other game was forfeited by Bass. Heading the starting line-up were: John Bacheller at center-forward, Garry Owen and Mark Berg manning the inside positions, Gary Payne and Sammy Thompson at the wings, Charles Berke, John Faulkner, and Tommy Manus at the halfback positions, Norman Barachik and Mike Royal at the full-backs, and Steve Hamrick at goalie.

Varsity Basketball Team suffers winless season

Lack of experience took its toll as the roundballers suffered a winless season. Although the Grey Knights displayed determination and spirit, they fell to team after team by large margins. After losing to Bass in the first contest of the season, Grady played admirably against Carver and Brown, two of the best teams in the state.

Despite Grady's record, senior Charles Watson performed well against superior competition. Watson led the team in scoring, averaging nearly twenty points a game. Juniors Steve Enloe and Clack Roberson also displayed ability, as did Henry Reeves.

Mistakes frequent as girls lose all but two

Grady's Girl's Basketball Team suffered from an absence of height which mainly accounted for their disappointing record. Although the girls were usually defeated on the boards, they had a good defense which proved its worth during their only two victories against Brown and Carver.

Due to many mistakes which resulted in turn-overs, the offense rarely gathered important momentum which is vital to a good team. Members of the starting line-up were Valorie Clift, Etta Reeves, and Lynn Adams on defense and Beatrice Stokes, Sandra Freedman and Kathy Zwald on offense.

Winless season a result of B-Team's lack of height

Grady's inexperienced B-Team was a victim of bad luck this season, losing several games by only two points. The team consisted mostly of freshmen who despite being fundamentally capable, lacked both height and good defensive players.

Freshmen Mickey Roth and Steve Weiner led the scoring attack for the Junior Knights while Sammy Bailey and sophomore Ronald Anderson played well under the boards. Coach Haithcock possessed other good players such as Willie Pitts, Jimmy Presmanes, Willie Hammond, Mike Freeman and Rusty Smith.

Turnovers plunge Baby Knights into 0-9 record

Defensive errors and costly turnovers thrust the Subfreshman Team into a disappointing 0-9 season. Despite their record, the Baby Knights were exceptional shooters, with Greg Sheats and Bobby Youngblood heading the list of scorers. Richard Jacobson, Terry Kilgore and Ralph Smith were also starters.

Varsity Track produces a well balanced squad

With the transfer of Coach Chadwick to the Varsity Track Team, the Knights looked forward to a successful season. Taking advantage of nearby Grady Stadium as a practice facility, the team responded with excellent showings in the field events.

Both the high jump and broad jump were well executed by Steve Tinter, while Steve Kelley performed well with the shot put. Other standouts were Steve Enloe, Mark Evans, and Jay Rechtman in the short distances and Phil Gardner, Mike Royals and Richard Boone in the longer running events.

Even after a year's layoff from tough competition, Vivienne Drakes' powerful forehand stroke appears to obliterate the ball

Tennis Team hopeful of repeating championship

Grady's Tennis Team's only handicap this season was size. Although the team was small, every player was a hardened veteran of many campaigns. Returning to the boy's squad this year were Marshall Fay, Peter Walker and Steve Wallace.

Coach Bush also had several good players in the girl's division. Seniors Lynn Adams, Vivienne Drakes and Susan Wright added depth to the team, while Kay Kinard and Susan Walker improved with practice.

Baseball team features many excellent hitters

The Baseball Team benefited from good hitting this season, backed up with good fielding and fair pitching. On the mound for the Knights were Robert Johnson and Charles Watson with catcher Terry Carroll establishing a fine battery. Around the infield, the team had the advantage with Buzzy Quattlebaum holding down the third base position and David Hickmon performing well at shortstop. Grady also had capable players such as Jay Halpern, Sandy Weinstein, Ricky Lewis, and Sam Bromberg filling in at key positions.

The B-Team was strong in every department. Mike Branca, Jimmy Presmanes and Dennis Wright turned in fine performances at their respective positions. Donald Sims and Arnaldo Villalobos both possessed hitting potential, while Mike Freeman and Howard Pousner came off of the bench to do excellent jobs. The Junior Knights can expect to have many prosperous seasons in the near future.

CLASSES

Curriculum is an everchanging phenomenon, always striving to reach each individual of the masses. New equipment is neverceasingly being perfected so that each student can learn at his own pace and pursue his own personal interests without feeling a need to conform.

Eighth grade homeroom chairmen: Charlene Bryant, Linda Chaney, Evelyn Woodall, Angela Robinson, Jeannie Kaplan, Jill Auerbach, and Sarah Patterson

New election procedure improves class selection

On January 20th, the subfreshmen class elected their class officers by a new procedure. They required each candidate to submit to the student council a report on his objectives if elected, publishing the major points of each candidate on an information sheet and distributing these to the class a few days before the balloting. Under this new electing system, voters placed a 3 by the name of their choice for president, 2 for vice-president, and 1 for secretary-treasurer. Their selections were Eric Robert, president; Barbara Stuart, vice-president; and Angela Robinson, secretary-treasurer.

Energetic subfreshmen storm the subbasement

Brimming with energy, subfreshmen descended on Grady in August to be briefed on their curriculum courses before school officially opened. Their regular curriculum consisted of English, mathematics, social studies, and P.E. Some branched out by taking science or foreign language courses, realizing that grades would be recorded on their permanent record.

Young Gradyites start careers with honor roll

Three hundred and ten subfreshmen occupy the sub-basement each school morning. Learning quickly the value of hard work, they made their efforts pay off for thirty-four subfreshmen started their high school careers with a 3.5 average or better by making the honor roll.

Variety of ideas mix to form subfreshman class

A variety of ideas merged when students from eleven elementary schools joined the Grady family. Policies of Howard, Morningside, Spring Street, Inman, and Highland along with numerous others, including private schools blended together producing a many-sided subfreshman class.

FRESHMAN OFFICERS: Valerie Russell, president; Jan Eldridge, secretary-treasurer; Sammy Thompson, vice-president.

Russell, Thompson, and Eldridge lead freshmen

With their ever-increasing importance in the school, the freshmen selected outstanding classmates to lead them. Their officers were: Valerie Russell, president; Sammy Thompson, vice-president; and Jan Eldridge, secretary-treasurer. Guidance of class projects, including their homecoming float, was among many of these officers' duties.

Talent runs rampant throughout the freshman class

Talent ran rampant through the freshman class. Displaying musical ability, many ninth graders joined the band, orchestra, or mixed chorus. Athletically skilled freshmen girls became cheerleaders, majorettes, or Knightettes. Jimmy Rowland evidenced a more unconventional talent as he entertained students at the ORATOR Carnival with a puppet show.

Jubilant freshmen enjoy freedoms of second year

Having survived the usual eighth grade hazing period, ninth graders felt thoroughly indoctrinated into Grady life. Accompanying their elevated position was the freedom to select courses. Their choices included French, Spanish, German, algebra, basic math, world history, and world geography. For those who took required courses in summer school, numerous electives were available.

Numerous opportunities appear for sophomores

A new life opened for sophomores with more choices in curriculum and more freedom in electives. Best of all was the chance to band together with their friends into social clubs. Uniting this class in its most serious year were: Yolanda King, president; Kenny Shaffer, vice-president; and Anne Arledge, secretary-treasurer.

Entering their middle year at Grady, sophomores faced their greatest academic challenges. Biology, geometry, English, and history were among their required courses. Electives ranged from a foreign language to art. With these academic challenges, sophomores reached new heights of maturity.

Junior class swells with enforcement of court order

With the transfer of thirty-five of Grady's teachers and the fear of being bussed to another school, many juniors decided to graduate early. This hasty decision forced them to double up, taking senior courses their spring quarter and continuing into summer school, creating a large August graduation.

At the Christmas dance, juniors contemplate Jr.-Sr. formal.

Class officer, Julia Cothran, elaborates on junior class dues.

Juniors strive for the ultimate: great Jr.-Sr.

Juniors and seniors circled May eighth as a red letter day, for dancing at the new Sheraton Biltmore was an event. For this annual party honoring seniors, the juniors began raising money early. Once they had the place and the band, the officers nagged, cajoled, and threatened fellow classmates for their dues. They sold candy and promoted paper sales to meet ends.

Using well-developed abilities, new upper classmen entered into their fields of speciality. Outstanding juniors in the math department were expectant and excited as they entered Miss Reedy's exceptional math classes. Again, the well-developed science student studied carefully for facts and theory under the skilled guidance of Mrs. Sanders. The wonders and joys of literature unfolded to the juniors in Mrs. King's English class.

Class of '70 is pacesetter for all future classes

With the opening of the school doors in September, the class of '70 became an organized machine. They knew the importance of good leadership and cooperation. In attaining this awareness for themselves, they became pacesetters for future senior classes. Guiding their class objectives were Nita Stubblebine, president; Sam Bromberg, vice-president; and Marlene Galanti, secretary-treasurer. Supporting these officers, the Homeroom Chairmen worked with the students to attain class goals as well as individual aims.

CLASS OFFICERS: Nita Stubblebine, president, Marlene Galanti, secretary-treasurer; Sam Bromberg, vice-president.

Prominent achievements bring honors to Grady

Eight seniors reached the National Merit Semi-Finals and received letters of commendations. All of these seniors except John Craig did their high school work at Grady. John Craig came to Grady his senior year from Westminster.

Grady was second only to Northside in the number of National Merit Semi-Finalists for city schools. Recognizing these students in their outstanding achievement, the school accepted their excellence as an honor to the school.

ANNE BIEREND—Latin Club; Biology Club; Twinx Social Club; Girl's Glee Club.

Senior spirit flows past the athletic assemblies

"SRS—Seniors are the best" resounded from the senior section as they rooted the team on to victory. Surpassing all other classes in school spirit, they attended assemblies en masse. To boost interest in Homecoming, the Rufus B. Godwin Memorial Club presented a skit depicting the girls' maneuverings to get on Homecoming Court. Taking the lead in other school activities, the class of '70 proved that their spirit extended beyond that of assemblies.

Hard work pays off as senior class captures award

An excited crowd watches as the senior class float rolls by.

Sharon Entin's basement provided the scene for the senior class's homecoming float. Their efforts paid off as Student Council presented "the best float award" to the class of '70. Reigning over the Homecoming game was this year's Homecoming Queen, Susan Cohen.

Sam Bromberg alerts seniors to the Homecoming projects.

Outstanding seniors see top colleges in future

Running to the mailbox in the afternoon to check for letters of acceptance to the college of their choice became a daily routine for many seniors. Some of their selections were: Yale, Harvard, and Purdue. Other institutions applied to closer to home were Emory and Georgia Tech.

Cohen and Robkin head the major publications

Heading the major publications at Grady were two outstanding seniors: Candy Cohen, editor of the ORATOR, and Steve Robkin, editor of the SOUTHERNER. For Steve, news of school events was his first concern; for Candy compiling a complete record of the school year kept her involved.

Outstanding '70 seniors receive monthly honors

Seven years ago, the Downtown Exchange Club started their monthly selecting of the outstanding senior for the month. Basing their selections on outstanding achievements on both the academic and extra-curricular fields, the club invited certain students to their regular luncheon meeting honoring them with a $25.00 bond and a plaque. Those who received these honors were: October—David Hansen, November—Dorothy Peteet, January—Steve Robkin, February—Marian Bass, March—Marshall Fay, April—Mary Hinkle.

Privileges are of primary importance to class of '70.

Privileges, although minute in number, were of paramount importance to the senior class. Being able to write their own excuse for absences and to leave school before three o'clock placed responsibility in each senior's hand.

Senior privileges take turns for class of '70

Senior privileges took a new turn for this class. For them leaving campus was dashing to a college classroom or a job in another part of town. Two students, Terry Sharp and John Craig, attended classes at Georgia Tech; Julia Barker and Dan Barker held chairs with the Atlanta Emory Orchestra. Others assumed responsibilities at various business houses. With such schedules open campus for this class was not for recreation but a necessary routine.

Leaving school early becomes daily routine for Terry Sharp.

Rapid changes in business community are apparent

Bargains draw Jerry Glazer and Jack Arogeti to CARY SANDERS.

Repairing complex television sets is quite an art, one common at Cary Sanders. If you desire, however, to purchase a television, they offer many different models from which to choose. Hurry on down to 2423 Piedmont Avenue, and modernize your home!

Ever since Coca-Cola was invented 84 years ago, it has become a more important part of life in Atlanta. Now that same drink, a common quencher at Grady's many activities, has been taken around the world to myriads of people who have found things go better with Coke.

There are a number of reasons why Grady students go to Atlanta Milton Bradley, Inc. Here one may purchase anything from educational supplies to Parchisi. Of their four locations, the store at 384 Forrest Avenue is the most convenient for the ambitious Grady Knight.

If it is a necklace kick you are on, or even an engraving spree, Jordan Jewelers is eager to serve you. From the finest rings, bracelets, or earrings to a delicate china doll or furry teddy bear—the choice is yours at Jordan Jewelers.

Finally after long hours of searching, Jack and Jerry discover their ideal purchase mixed with the spare parts in a back room.

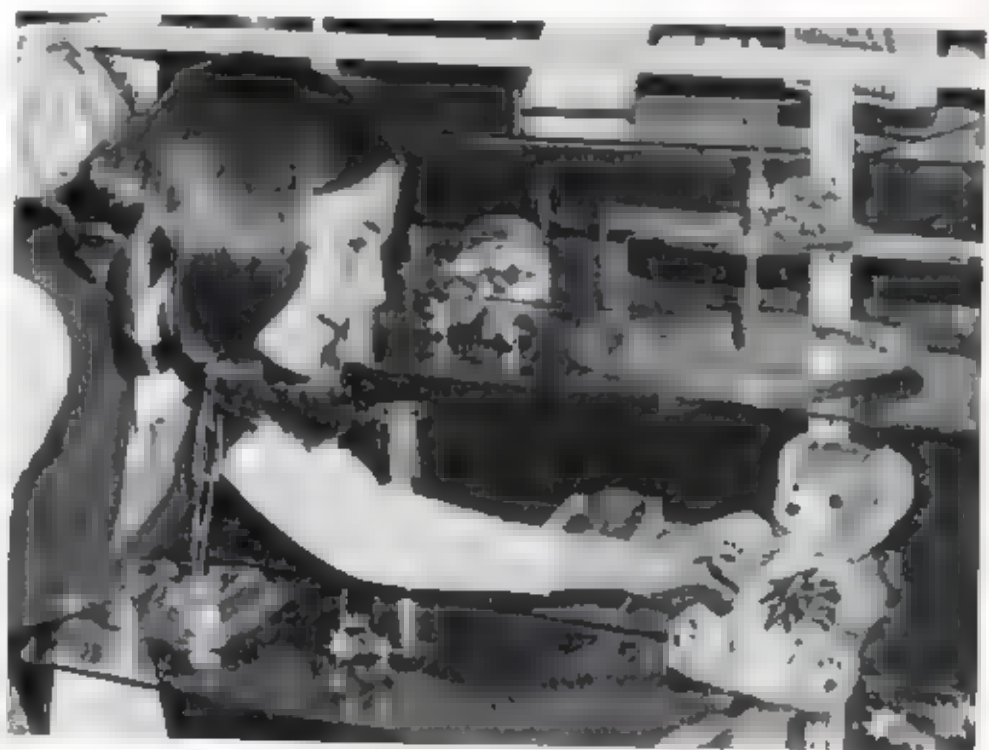

In the pleasant surroundings of Piedmont Park, Susie Silverboard discovers that things really do go better with COCA-COLA.

Grant's MILTON BRADLEY tempts customers Janis Truax, Byrna Melnick, and Yoki King with their wares.

Business community salutes Grady and its students

James Schwartz checks for weight and balance in a golf club.

To describe Ben Hyman and Company's array of products as being quite diversified is only half the story. As a famous wholesale distributor, they are known for their outstanding jewelry, varied appliances, and everyday domestic items. What you cannot find at Ben Hyman's cannot be found!

The loveliest way to lounge in style can be found at Silhouette-Atlanta located in nearby Ansley Mall. Everything from the most chic undergarments to the laciest slips is awaiting your visit to the original Silhouette-Atlanta (1544 Piedmont Avenue, NE).

Carrying a wide variety of reading material, the Ansley Mall Bookstore provides the public with a current and unique assortment of books and magazines. Its convenient location just minutes from Grady, gives students ready access to the finest in best-sellers, philosophy, history, or any selection from an extensive line of fiction.

A lovely selection of the latest fashions may be found at Sample Boutique. Here Grady girls become well acquainted with the newest in bell-bottom pants, mini-, midi-, and maxi-dresses, as well as the most stylish formal and semi-formal wear. Sample Boutique is the shop for the clothes-conscious belle.

Diverse local businesses assist Grady community

The corner of Virginia and Highland Avenues is not just any corner—especially because it harbors Jerry Canter's Standard Oil Service Station. It is a friendly but well-run station. A car would feel proud to have the attention of the noble Canter men!

Investing money is no simple task. The people at Fulton Federal Savings and Loan Association realize this. It is important that you know your savings are in safe hands . . . banking at Fulton Federal leads to a feeling of security and confidence.

If it is Italian food you seek, Pizza by Gigi's awaits you with the most tantalizing dishes in town. Their wide selection of pizzas is sure to please even the wildest appetites. Answer the call of your stomach with any one of Gigi's fine Italian foods.

In the mood for a delectable sandwich? Then your destination should be To-Go Sandwich Shop, located less than six blocks from Grady. Their chicken-salad or steak sandwich, topped with a plump Kosher pickle, will tickle your tastebuds!

While Cheryl Ernst hands the teller her deposit slip, Ronnie Goldberg stands in line at FULTON FEDERAL.

Delts' members function in school and community

Among Grady's organizations is the Delts Social Club. This group of twelve senior girls helped to improve conditions inside Grady while at the same time they served the outside community.

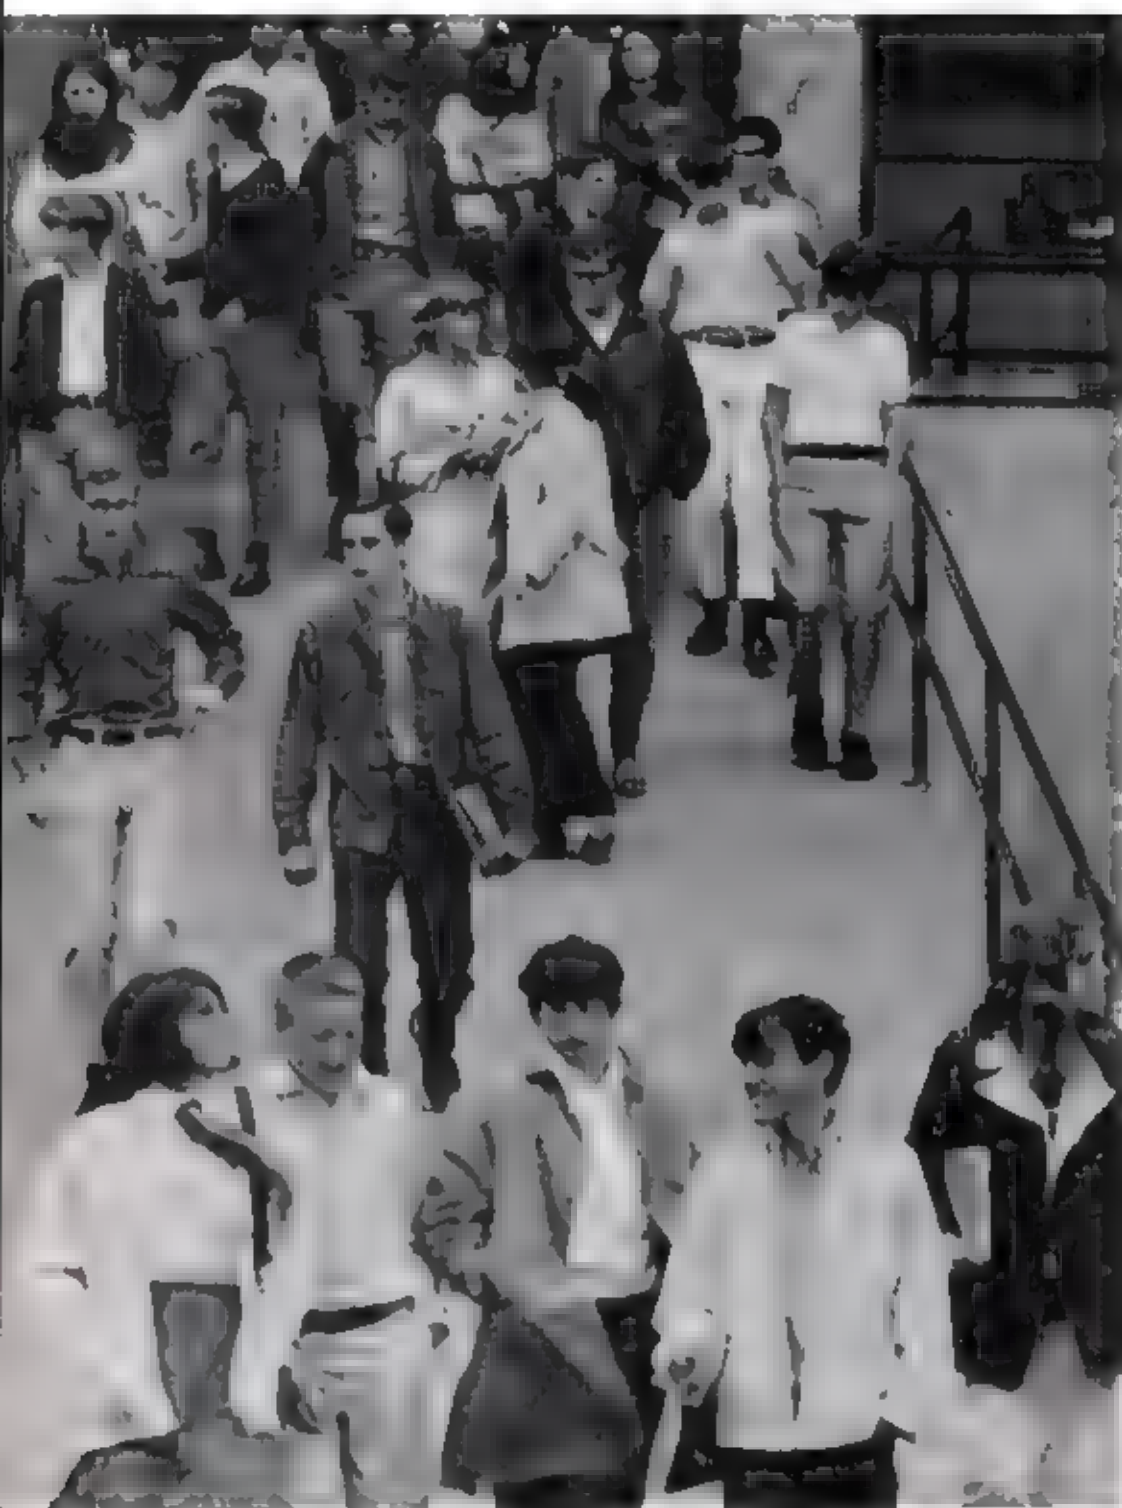

Filling their time have been such projects as making banners for pep assemblies, decorating for the Silver Slipper Ball, and making Hardwood Court Rosettes. In addition, the girls helped prepare for the Heart Fund Drive by stuffing packets. We would like to join with National Homes Construction Company in thanking the Delts for their work at Grady and in the community.

Delts member, Leigh Kirkland, is all ears in the classroom.

Sandbar Casuals takes this opportunity to commend the Grey Knights. They are aware of the work that Grady does in teaching the young people of the area, and appreciate the students' concern for the community—as shown through Grady's organizations.

Need a moment with that special someone to rejuvenate your spirits? Then head for Gene and Gabe's. Its soft lights and captivating atmosphere set the mood for the fine dishes of spaghetti, steak, or even clam. Dining at Gene and Gabe's is an experience!

Tired of the ordinary dress shop? Then try Merry-Go-Round. Expect anything from a red suede Indian jacket to a pirate hat. Here anything goes . . . the sales people could double as customers; their dress is typical of Merry-Go-Round's funloving styles!

Stretching shoes or strengthening heels . . . no problem is too difficult for the eager crew at Bain Shoe Repair, where satisfactory and speedy service is yours for the asking. Not only shoes, but also handbags or any leather goods can be repaired quickly.

Grady is family school as exemplified by Downings

For fifteen years there has been one or more Downings in school at Grady, beginning with Jimmy, then Jo Ann, John, Richard, and David; and there have been to help whenever needed their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Downing. These two, always active behind the scenes, accepted for the second time the position of co-president of the Parent-Teacher Association for the 1969-1970 school year. This was fitting, for it was a year of great change and the Downings were right for the job. They represented many other families whose names have been synonymous with Grady throughout the years, for Grady is a family school where teachers and parents share not one child but a family. It is this Grady-family atmosphere that makes for close relationships and strong feelings.

This November 12th the first of these strong ties was broken: the school lost one of its staunchest supporters, Mr. Jim Downing. Realizing that life and love and happiness are transitory, Gradyites give thanks for what has been their privilege to share of this man's life and work. To them he serves as an example of what it means to give of oneself for others: his life is a tribute to the living.

Richard, editor of the 1968 yearbook, attained the highest recognition awarded a Grady student, the Henry Grady Trophy, for five years of service and scholastic achievement.

Progress forces changes into the school system

As progress moves houses to make way for expressways, it also forces people into new situations. Just as old buildings come down and brighter, taller structures rise in their place, the old Atlanta School System changes so that a new structure can better serve the varied needs of the overall city.

But buildings and school systems are made of entirely different materials: concrete is hard and brittle while people are soft and impressionable. Treated as the same, they will react differently, and the change that triggered this treatment will greater affect the softer of the two mediums.

Nancy,
This year has been great, I'm so glad you made it all team. We'll have a blast & you're a great girl. Love,
Leslie

Hi Nancy,
You've really been a great friend through all the years. Keep up

Nancy,
Do you remember when you made Will so I don't think I've ever seen you happy
and when you're happy
I'm happy, you love camp, have fun this summer
& I'll see ya' at practices. Be good
Love ya'

Nancy

We really hadn't gotten to know each other till this year and I'm glad we did. So let's keep on being friends

Love
Paula

Nancy, you've got the looks and the personality. Good luck through the years.
Janice

To my best friend. ~~Love~~ you this summer. Love ya, Jennifer Ross

Nancy; (cold)
It has been quite an experience getting to know you and hope our acquaintance will continue even though you're <sup>(not really)</sup> leaving you

Love
Dany Taylor

Dear Nancy,
I'm really glad I met you this year. Next year's drill team will be great.
Can't wait! Best of luck with EVERYTHING
next year!
Love ya,
Jill

Nancy,
Have a good summer
and a great freshman year. Keep your good looks and your sweet disposition
Love ya,
Huntly M.

Dear Nancy,

I hope we can stay friends forever. I may need you sometimes with my problems and I'm sure you will need me. I hope good luck and good fortune & happiness come to you always.

Your sister (Ha.Ha)

Angela

~~Sarah~~
Nancy.

I just can't stop thinking about me. You have helped me a lot this year. I would never have found

NANCY, anyone else WE'VE HAD OUR ups & downs, LETS be all JUST STAY HIGH. the ITS REALLY BEEN base- THINKING I KNOW lol you. games

La U. ya.

Be good this summer & I'll see ya next year. Love to go Sarah

Nancy, well
It's been great knowing you this year. How do ya like being in high school? Ha!
Good luck in your freshman year & with the boys! Gony! Love ya!
